

Ibero-American Meeting of Science and Faith

“New voices in the international academic discourse”

Mexico. September 30th to October 2nd, 2015

Panoramic view of Mexico City

Place: This conference will take place at the Theological Community of Mexico, Mexico City.

Dates: From September 30th to October 2nd, 2015.

Objectives:

- To create an instance for academic discussions, with the aim to foster research on science and faith topics. It will be particularly oriented to researchers and students that do not have adequate support from their institutions and that have the potential to contribute to the international discussion.
- Lay the groundwork for the formation of the first Ibero-American network for science and faith. In this way, a formal collaboration will be established between several initiatives that so far have worked independently, so that specific projects could be established for research, education and public dissemination in the region.

Abstract submission: Academics, researchers and students from different fields (sciences, theology, humanities, technology, etc.) are invited to submit abstracts. These can be written in Spanish, Portuguese and English.

The deadline for abstract submission is May 31th.

More information about abstracts and registration:

<http://redcienciayfe.wix.com/encuentro2015>

Organizers:

Official sponsors:

Special participants:

